WHO GETS INTO COLLEGE?

By FRANK H. BOWLES

President

College Entrance Examination Board

WHAT ARE my child's chances of getting into college? What can I as a parent do to improve my child's chances of getting into the college that seems best for him?

Chances are you've asked these questions, and maybe other parents have asked them of you. For admission to college has become the nation's sure-fire topic of conversation.

Elections, baseball and international upheavals compete for attention, of course; but these matters don't touch our personal lives. Yet it seems that every American has some contact with the business of college entrance, knows a surprising amount about it—or at least thinks he does—and wants to know more.

What he wants to know usually boils down to the two questions above.

A Quick Answer

THERE IS a quick answer to the first question—what are my child's chances of getting into college?

Any child who has an I. Q. of ninety-five or better, who can write a letter including a simple declarative sentence such as "I want to go to your college," who can read without moving his lips, and who can pay college expenses up to $500 a year can go to college. But it may also be true that a child with an I. Q. of 140 who can do differential equations in his head may not get to college.

Obviously, then, the general answer can only indicate that there is a tremendous range of institutions, with varying standards and opportunities, and that many factors determine actual chances of admission. For a full answer to the question, we must examine and describe these types of institutions.

As a first step, let us take a hypothetical group of one hundred high school graduates who go on to college in a given year, and see what the typical pattern of their applications and acceptances would be:

Twenty students, all from the top half of the class, will apply to sixty of the institutions that are generally listed as "preferred." Ten of them will be accepted by twenty of the institutions. Nine of the ten will graduate from their colleges, and six of the nine will continue in graduate or professional school and take advanced degrees. These ten admitted students will average six years' attendance apiece.

Seventy students, forty from the top half of the class (including those ten who did not make preferred institutions), all twenty-five from the third quarter, and five from the fourth quarter, will apply to eighty institutions generally considered "standard" or "respectable." Sixty will be accepted by one or both of the colleges to which they applied. Thirty of the sixty will graduate, and ten will continue in graduate or professional school, most of them for one- or two-year programs. These sixty admitted students will average about three years of college apiece.

Thirty students, including all of the fourth quarter and five from the third quarter, will apply to institutions that are ordinarily known as "easy." Half of these institutions will be four-year colleges, and half junior colleges or community colleges. All thirty students will be admitted. Fifteen will leave during the first year, and eight more during the next two years. The seven who receive degrees will go directly to employment, although one or two may return to college later for a master's degree in education.

Types of Institutions

AT THIS point, we need some specific information about the types of institutions I have just mentioned.

"Preferred" institutions — the ones that receive the most attention from high school students — number from 100 to 150, depending on who makes the list. In my judgment, the larger number is correct, and the list is still growing. It should reach 200 by 1965, and 250 by 1970. The number of places available in preferred institutions — now approximately 100,000 — should increase to about 150,000 during the next decade.

The present 150 preferred colleges are located in about fifteen states— mostly in the Northeast, the northern Middle West and on the Pacific coast. Four-fifths are private, with three-fourths of the total enrollment of the group. The one-fifth that are public have one-fourth of the enrollment. This proportion is changing; in a few years it will be three-fifths private and two-fifths public, with a fifty-fifty enrollment split.

It now costs about $3,000 a year to send a child to a preferred institution.

"Standard" institutions—which are not selective at admission, but will not admit any student obviously destined to fail—number from 700 to 800. The larger number includes about fifty that could be considered part of the preferred list and another fifty that could be placed on the easy list. In my judgment, the smaller number is the right one for this category. It will stay about constant over the next decade, with some shifting between lists. But enrollments within the standard category will go up by at least fifty per cent.

Standard institutions are of course located in every state. Seventy per cent of their enrollments are in public institutions, and thirty per cent in private ones. But the private institutions outnumber the public ones in a ratio of sixty-forty. Many of the private colleges are remarkably small.

Costs at standard institutions tend to run from $1,500 to $2,500 per year. Yet some of these schools operate with very low fees, and naturally the public ones are in the lower cost brackets.

"Easy" institutions number about 800, of which 300 are four-year colleges and the rest junior colleges or community colleges. The list will grow rapidly as colleges are established over the next decade. Even though some easy colleges will raise requirements and join the standard group, there may well be 1,500 colleges in this category by 1970. Enrollment will triple in the same period.

At present about one-third of the easy institutions are four-year private colleges with enrollment problems, and many of these are trying to enter the standard group. But almost all newly established institutions are tax-supported. Thus by 1970 the number of private colleges on this level of education will be negligible.

Cost of attending these institutions is now very low; tuition ranges from nothing to $500 a year.

Chances of Admission

WITH THESE descriptions established, let us consider chances of admission to these institutions, now and in the future.

The "preferred" institutions are already difficult to enter, and will become more so. In general, their requirements call for an academic standing in the upper quarter of the secondary school class, and preferably in the upper tenth. School recommendations must be favorable, and the individual must show signs of maturity and purpose. Activities and student leadership have been much overplayed, particularly by parents and school advisers, but they carry some weight as indications of maturity. Parental connections with colleges help, but are rarely decisive. If any factor is decisive, it is the school record as verified by College Board scores.

Chances of admission to any of this group of "preferred" colleges may be estimated as follows:

School record in upper ten per cent, with appropriate College Board scores and endorsement from high school—not worse than two chances out of three.

School record in upper quarter, with verifying College Board scores—not worse than one in three. This does not mean that the student will get one acceptance out of two or three tries, but rather that this estimate of chance holds for any preferred institution he applies to.

School record below the upper quarter, with strong counterbalancing factors, such as high College Board scores, remarkable personal qualities, proven talents in special fields, strong family connections, recent awakening of interest and excellent performance, achievement despite great handicaps—not better than one chance in three, and not worse than one chance in four.

No others need apply.

'Standard' Institutions

THE "STANDARD" institutions are, taken as a group, still accessible to any student whose past performance or present promise gives reasonable chances of college success. But there are gradations within the standard institutions.

REVEALS WHAT PARENTS CAN DO TO MAKE BEST CHOICE

Some approach the selectiveness of the preferred group; others are purposefully lenient in their admissions and stiffer in later "weeding out" during the first year of college.

A student shows reasonable chance of success when he has taken a secondary school program, including at least two years of mathematics, two years of a foreign language, and four years of English, has passed all subjects on the first try, and has produced good grades in at least half of them. This means a school record not too far below the middle of the class, at worst. Now that nearly all standard institutions are requiring College Boards or similar types of examinations, the school record has to be backed by test scores placing the student in the middle range of applicants (CEEB scores of 400 or higher).

Such a student can be admitted to a standard institution, but he may have to shop for vacancies, particularly if his marks and scores are on the low side and if he comes from a part of the country where there are more candidates than vacancies. Thus students in the Northeast often have to go outside their region to get into a standard college, even if they have excellent records. On the other hand, where there is still room for expansion, as in the South and parts of the Middle West, students may enter some of the standard institutions with records that are relatively weak.

Students with poor records or poor

Frank Bowles is the nation's leading authority on a matter of great importance to students and their parents: how to find the right college and get into it.

He has been director, and now president, of the all-important College Entrance Examination Board since 1948. And he has been dealing with college admissions and testing of applicants virtually all the time since he received his B.A. (1928) and M.A. (1930) from Columbia. He was director of university admissions for Columbia before going to the College Board.

Among his side assignments, he has served on the Fulbright National Selection Committee, the King George VI Scholarship Committee of the English Speaking Union, and the National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students. He has been a consultant to the Fund for the Advancement of Education and to a number of colleges and programs who still offer unusual qualifications, such as interest in meteorology or astronomy, students who wish to follow unusual programs in college, or students who are otherwise out of pattern will often find it difficult to enter standard institutions. Curiously enough, they may well encounter greater difficulty with such institutions than they would have with many in the preferred category. In other words, standard institutions are "standard" in many senses of the word. They take care of the majority of college students, and will continue to, but they do not move much outside of a fixed pattern.

Some 'Easy' Colleges

"EASY" INSTITUTIONS are by definition non-selective. We can make several generalizations about them:

First, any high school graduate can enter an easy institution, regardless of his I.Q., or his studies in school, or what he hopes to do in college and after.

Second, an easy college usually offers a wide range of courses, all the way from a continuation of the general high school course, to technical and semi-professional programs, to the standard college subjects.

Third, easy colleges will draw some well-prepared students who later go on to advanced degrees.

Fourth, since easy colleges are not selective (neither keeping students universities, generally dealing with administrative organization and the development of graduate programs. He has long been an officer of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. He is a member of the Board of Visitors of the U.S. Military Academy, and a trustee of the New Lincoln School.

Currently Mr. Bowles is in Paris, at the office of UNESCO, on a two-year assignment of great interest. He is heading a Carnegie-supported study of university admissions theory and practice around the world.

His book, How to Get Into College, was published in 1958, and revised last year. Here in this article, he opens new horizons and gives fresh advice and new ideas for those increasing numbers of youngsters who want to go to college at a time when getting into college seems to be more and more difficult.

out nor forcing them out), they must operate so that students will make their own decisions, and thus they must have a strong institutional emphasis on guidance.

Fifth, since one of the most powerful of all selective devices is the charge for tuition, easy colleges tend to charge low, or no, tuition.

Sixth, easy colleges are a consequence, not a cause, of enlarged demand for higher education. Even when they offer programs which a few years ago would not have been considered as college work, they do so in response to demand. And the demand is increasing. Total enrollment in higher education in 1970 will be about double that of today, and it may well be that this type of institution will account for from one-third to one-half of that total. The number and size of these institutions will increase, and they will become widely distributed throughout the country, instead of being concentrated on the Pacific coast and in the Middle West as they are now. Thus in 1970 it will still be possible for any student to enter college.

TO SUM UP, then, the answer to our first question is that a student's chances of getting into college are excellent — provided that he is able and willing to do what is necessary to prepare himself for the college he would like to enter, or that he is willing to enter the college that is willing to accept him.

What Parents Can Do

LET'S TURN now to our second question: What can I as a parent do to improve my child's chances of getting into the college that seems best for him?

This is one of the standard, rather heavy questions for which there are already available a great many standard, rather heavy answers, dealing with the desirability of the good life, the need for stable parents and other valid but unenlightening pronouncements. But some of the problems raised by this question do not yield to standard answers. Three such problems, or needs, deserve our attention:

QUESTIONS ON ADMISSION TO JUNIATA

What preference is given sons and daughters of alumni?

How should a high school student proceed to secure admission for September, 1962?

Are College Entrance Examination Board tests required?

Does the College provide housing for all new students?

How do you know if your son or daughter should go to college?

Juniata's director of admissions, Ronald W. Wertz '59 spends many a busy day talking with prospective members of the Juniata family and high school guidance counselors about the possibility of going to college, specifically Juniata College. Ron is third from left.

1. Will it be more difficult to secure admission to college during the next few years?

Yes. Because of an increase in applications, the college will be more selective. The following are two basic reasons for the increase in applications: a. An increase in population; b. The Admissions Office will be visiting more high schools and exposing Juniata to more students.

2. What are the reasons for increased demand for admission?

Industries, etc., have placed a premium on a college degree. High schools are emphasizing college more than ever before.

3. How can sons and daughters of alumni improve their chances for admission to Juniata?

Do as any other parent, i. e., to have their sons and daughters take the college preparatory course and work to their capacity.

4. Do children of alumni get any preference in admission?

Yes. Juniata, like any other college, has an obligation to its alumni.

5. What is the outlook for next fall in terms of enrollment?

At the present time, the outlook for next year (1961-62) is "splendid." We have started a WAITING LIST for girls and anticipate the vacancies for men to be filled shortly.

6. How many students asked for admission and how many were accepted for 1960?

We received 797 applications. Out of this number, approximately 440 students were offered admission. This does not include Summer School students.

7. How should a high school student proceed to secure admission for September, 1962?

a. File a formal application; b. Have your secondary record forwarded; c. Have three recommendation forms (we provide forms) completed and forwarded; d. Make arrangements to visit the campus for a personal interview; e. Have senior SAT scores of the CEEB's forwarded; f. The Writing Sample is recommended and can be used to strengthen the application.

8. Will applicants be considered on the basis of their records at the beginning of their senior year?

Applicants are considered on a basis of the high school record from and including 9th grade.

9. Will there be any need for mid-year grades?

In some cases where the student is on the "border line" mid-term grades are necessary before a definite decision is rendered.

10. When should a high school student apply for admission to Juniata?

The best time to make application to Juniata is from August 1 to January 31. However, an application will be accepted anytime after the completion of the junior year.

11. Will College Entrance Examination Board tests be required?

Yes. The morning session of the C. E. E. B. test (known as the SAT) is required. The Writing Sample is recommended.

12. Are other entrance examinations required for admission?

No.

13. What specific high school subject matter is needed for admission?

The student must have the academic or college preparatory program in high school. He must acquire at least 16 academic credits in order to qualify. The following specifically indicates what must be included in the 16 academic credits: a. Fours years of English; b. Two years of a foreign language; c. Two years of history; d. Two years of mathematics; e. Two years of science.

In each of the latter fields, three credits are recommended. The remainder of the credits may be made up of electives of the academic course.

14. Does the college provide housing for all new students?

Yes. Housing is provided by the college. Male students may live either on campus, or in private homes. Female students must live on campus in college provided housing.

15. Are living accommodations equally available to men and women?

Yes. A new residence hall for men will be completed in June; another new hall for women is scheduled for construction beginning this summer.

16. Will acceptance, at an early date, be advantageous for a resident hall assignment?

Yes. Early acceptance would assure a resident hall assignment providing the student had also paid his Matriculation Fee early.

17. Is there any difference in the admission requirements for men and women?

No.

18. Is there a housing problem for students admitted with advanced standing?

No.

19. If a student has attended another college, are there standards he must meet in order to transfer to Juniata?

Yes. A student wishing to transfer must leave the previous school in good standing both academically and socially.

20. How do I know if my son or daughter should go to college?

Tests such as the college boards will indicate whether your son or daughter has an aptitude to do college work. However, desire to go, willingness to work hard, and ability to learn readily from books are important factors.

21. When should a student begin "getting serious" about going to college?

A student should begin seriously considering college in at least his junior year in high school. Students today start the academic curriculum in the 9th grade.

22. Is there a counseling program which "advises in advance" before a student enters Juniata?

A student should receive counseling in advance through the high school guidance counselor or talking to a representative of Juniata. In addition, Dean Heberling plans to 'counsel' entering freshmen and their parents this summer.

*Commencement Is Scheduled for Sunday
With Justice Whittaker as Speaker;
Alumni Day Activities Planned June 3*

CROSS-CUTTING THE CAMPUS

THE COLLEGE will observe a major break in tradition this year by holding its year-end Commencement at 2:30 Sunday afternoon, June 4, 1961, in Oller Hall. Commencements have been held on Monday since 1921; prior to that on Thursday dating to the first in 1879.

The change will result in a more compact weekend of alumni and senior activities which formerly extended until noon Monday. Class reunions and the annual alumni dinner will be held Saturday, June 3, and the Commencement Chorus will sing in Oller Hall at 8:15 that night. Baccalaureate will be held at 10:45 and Commencement exercises at 2:30 p. m. Sunday.

Seniors will have a "farewell dinner" given by alumni May 18 to replace the traditional appearance of the seniors at the Saturday banquet. In addition, the College will have seniors and their parents as guests at luncheon Sunday.

Alumni will notice little, if any, change because the golf tournament, alumni baseball game, and reunions again are scheduled.

Will Honor Justice

A DISTINGUISHED jurist, Justice Charles Evan Whittaker of the Supreme Court of the United States, will receive an honorary doctor of laws degree from the College at June Commencement.

Justice Whittaker, whose grandfather was a native of Huntingdon county, will give the Commencement address to the Class of 1961.

Born in Kansas and educated in the public schools of that state, Justice Whittaker finished high school in Kansas City, Mo., attended the Kansas City School of Law (now the Law School of the University of Kansas City), and was graduated with an LL.B. degree in 1924. He was admitted to the Missouri Bar, specialized in trial work, but since 1942 devoted much of his efforts to appellate work and to office counseling, corporate and financial matters.

After serving as a U. S. District Judge and in the U. S. Court of Appeals, Eighth Circuit, he was nominated by President Eisenhower as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States in March 1957. Justice Whittaker was the first Missourian and the first native Kansan ever to serve on the Court.

Why Frosh Came

FRESHMEN at Juniata came here because it is "a small college" and because of its "academic reputation."

Those two reasons have dominated the results of a poll of new students which has been conducted for 14 years to aid in evaluating Juniata's admissions program. Rated as the third reason by 250 freshmen this year was "the quality of faculty and students."

"Superiority in chosen field" and "ideals of the college" ranked fourth and fifth among 14 major reasons why the students selected Juniata. Curiously enough, "the athletic program appealed to me" was on the bottom of the list in spite of Juniata's widely known success in football and golf.

Freshmen claimed they learned about Juniata primarily through "my school" and "an alumnus of the college."

Testing Program

A TESTING PROGRAM among seniors and freshmen was conducted this spring to assist the College in evaluating the progress of its students toward the attainment of major educational goals.

The impending evaluation by the Middle States Association and the prospect of launching a new curriculum next fall were the primary reasons why the tests were administered, according to Dean of the College Morley Mays.

The Area Tests of the Graduate Record Examination—designed to assess the broad outcomes of education in the liberal arts—were required of all seniors and freshmen. These tests provide for "a comprehensive appraisal of the college student's orientation in three principal areas of human culture: social science, humanities and natural science."

Justice Charles E. Whittaker

The Advanced Tests, which yield measures for evaluating mastery in selected fields of study, were required of seniors only.

New Hall Planned

ANOTHER MAJOR step in the development program has been taken by filing formal application with the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency for $660,000 to construct a new residence hall for 150 women.

The Agency previously notified the college that it has reserved this amount for the project. Hence, a "go ahead" signal was expected promptly so that construction may get under way in July. Hopes are that the building will be ready for occupancy in September, 1962.

Plans call for the new residence to be an L-shaped structure, similar in design to Lesher Hall for women. The site has been selected for Oneida and 17th Streets near College Field.

No dining hall has been planned for this building which has been drawn by Hunter, Campbell and Rea, Altoona architects. The proposed residence will be used to replace present antiquated dormitory facilities in Founders and Oneida Halls.

Simpson Scholarship

AN ALTOONA high school senior, Jeffrey W. Grove, has been awarded the

The new residence hall for 120 men, known as Sherwood Hall, should be ready for occupancy "well ahead of schedule," possibly by June 1 instead of the original deadline of July 15. Construction went ahead because the contractor was successful in getting the building "under roof" prior to the first major snowfall last December. A loan of $375,000 was provided by the HHFA to help cover the cost of the $425,000 three-floor, red-brick building near North Hall.

Richard M. Simpson Memorial scholarship—one of the most coveted awards for students at the College.

Grove, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne S. Grove, 701 Seventh Ave., Altoona, will receive a scholarship of $1,000 for each of four years. The first recipient of the Simpson scholarship was Robert E. Rose, Livingston, N. J., who recently became the third Juniata student in four years to be awarded one of the nation's foremost law scholarships, the Root-Tilden at New York University.

The establishment of the memorial scholarship was announced in February, 1960, by the Hon. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, former Speaker of the House, who was chairman of the sponsoring committee. The fund, as of April 15, 1961, amounted to $86,450.

783 Enrolled

THE REGISTRATION summary for the Spring term shows a total of 783 students enrolled according to Registrar Ronald L. Cherry '53. This represents a net loss of only 17 from the Fall term record enrollment of 800.

All but 36 of the 783 are classified students in the four undergraduate classes of the college. The breakdown shows 130 seniors, 167 juniors, 184 sophomores and 266 freshmen.

Of the 747 classified students, 672 are listed as resident and 75 as non-resident (day) students. There are four special students and 32 unclassified music and non-music students (all non-resident). Men outnumber women in the grand total 450 to 333.

Masque Entertains

SOMETHING DIFFERENT in the way of dramatic entertainment was provided by the Masque during the Spring term.

"The Barber of Seville," a high French comedy, was presented Feb.

17-18 and was considered "a feather in the cap of Juniata students." It was translated from the French by students in French drama class under Dr. George B. Clemens and Prof. Jack E. Oller.

Then an amazingly successful attempt at children's theater was staged February 25 when the Masquers, under direction of Bruce F. Spencer, did "Rumpelstiltskin." Nearly 1000 youngsters jammed Oller Hall for this experimental production.

The Spring play, Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit," was successfully presented April 21-22.

Summer Term Set

THE COLLEGE will offer a program of courses in its three divisions of study during a 10-week Summer term opening June 12. The schedule will include 29 course offerings in English, modern languages, philosophy, eco-

Visiting faculty members will include: Donald A. Miller, assistant county superintendent of schools in Huntingdon County; Gordon M. Shedd '58, former instructor of English who received his master's degree in English at the Pennsylvania State University at mid-year; and Dr. H. Tracy Sturcken, assistant professor of romance languages at Penn State.

Wins Root-Tilden

ROBERT E. ROSE '61, Livingston, N. J., has become the third Juniata student in the past four years to be selected to receive the coveted Root-Tilden scholarship at the New York University School of Law.

Del McQuaide '58 and Charles C. Brown, Jr. '59, are currently enrolled at N. Y. U. Root-Tilden scholarships are awarded annually to two outstanding college men from each of the 10 federal judicial circuits—20 in the nation.

Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar O. Rose, 170 Walnut St., Livingston, N. J., will be graduated from Juniata this June and begin his law studies in September. He was selected from the Third Judicial Circuit.

Rose '61

Another honor received by Rose this year was that of being the first recipient of the Richard M. Simpson Memorial Scholarship.

Dogwood Infestation

THE INFESTATION of flowering dogwood by two species of caterpillars was reported by Dr. Homer C. Will at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Academy of Science at Gettysburg College in April.

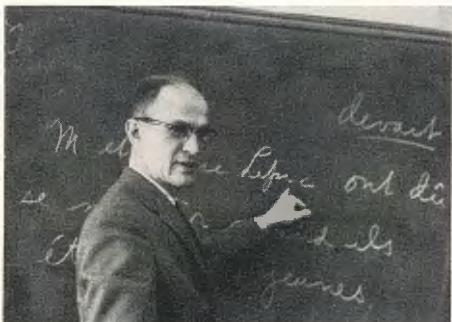

Dying back of the dogwood has caused "some alarm among tree owners and nurseries from New England to Georgia," according to the Juniata professor of biology.

THE FACULTY BRIEFCASE

Danforth Grant Aids New Curriculum

JUNIATA COLLEGE has been awarded a grant of $4,150 by the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis "to support three instructors during the summer of 1961" while they prepare to teach a new freshman course, Great Epochs of World Culture.

Steven A. Barbash, instructor in art, Dr. George B. Clemens '36, professor of modern languages, and Dr. Robert B. Thornburg, professor of English, have been selected to prepare to teach the course.

Each of the three "will need to engage in appropriate study next Summer in order to give the course its initial impetus." The Danforth grant will cover a major share of this expense.

President Ellis described the new basic course as "a conspicuous special feature" of the revised curriculum which goes into effect next September, 1961. Its general nature is suggested by the title "Great Epochs of World Culture."

"It is the feeling of the faculty of Juniata College that students today come more deficient in understanding of our cultural heritage and appreciation of the humanities than perhaps any other field," President Ellis explained. "Therefore, a special committee has been structuring this new freshman course."

Professor Clemens, who is chairman of the department of modern languages, headed a committee of three which accepted the responsibility of writing the syllabus of the new course. Other members were Philbrook W. Smith, assistant professor of history, and Wilfred G. Norris, assistant professor of physics.

The Committee is preparing syllabi for six epochs: The Age of Pericles, the Medieval Age, the Renaissance, the Age of Rationalism, the Age of Romanticism, and Oriental Culture. As presently planned, four epochs will be studied in any given year and choices will be made so that students and faculty will have the experience of new material each year.

In order to complete the preparation for the course two tasks remain to be done, President Ellis explained: "one is to bring the syllabi to completion and the other is to retrain a number of faculty for instruction in this course."

Critics Like Barbash

FAVORABLE REVIEWS from art critics have been received by Steven Barbash, instructor in art at the College, for his March-April show of paintings at the Barone Gallery, New York City.

The New York Times described Barbash as "the nonobjective painter" who was showing "pictures of considerable formal liveliness."

The Times' critic said that Barbash's pictures "look like abstract depictions of visionary landscapes and are covered with cascades and landslides of paint-color, which suggest the sort of action paintings Gustave Dore might have made. They are done with admirable gusto."

The New York Herald Tribune critic complimented Barbash's use of "the abstract-expressionist idiom to convey specific moods and even scenes in nature . . . Barbash uses the idiom very well."

Although Barbash has been represented in juried exhibitions throughout the East, this display was his first one-man show. It included eight paintings, three drawings and six prints.

Institute Staff Selected

A STAFF OF SIX has been selected for the National Science Foundation Summer Institute which will be conducted at the College July 10 to August 19.

The Foundation granted $40,200 to conduct the Institute in "chemical equilibrium" for high school chemistry teachers and named Dr. David M. Hercules '54, as director.

In addition to Dr. Hercules, associate professor of chemistry, other staff members will be Dr. Donald M. Rockwell, professor and chairman of the department of chemistry at the College; Dr. Velmer B. Fish, associate professor of chemistry, Lehigh University; and Dr. Robert S. Sprague, associate professor of chemistry, Lehigh University.

Aid for Research

THE COLLEGE has been awarded two grants by the National Science Foundation in support of its research in chemistry and physics.

One grant of $16,790 was made to permit undergraduate research participation in a two-year project in chemistry and physics to continue to study the photochemistry of dyes in organic solvents, under the direction of Dr. B. Edwin Blaisdell.

Another grant of $2,335 was made for work under Dr. David M. Hercules '54 in chemistry to study "molecular complexes in interhalogen and pseudohalogen compounds."

Bill Berrier to Return

THE APPOINTMENT of William F. Berrier '60, Harrisburg, to a newly created position as assistant to the dean of men, effective next September, has been announced by President Ellis. In the new post, Bill will serve as general assistant to Dean Paul Heberling on a six-month assignment.

Berrier also has agreed to assist Coach Ken Bunn in football next season. In addition, he will develop and supervise campus recreational activities for the dean of men and serve as faculty supervisor of the men's intramural athletic program.

The former Little All-American fullback for the Indians is currently under a major league baseball contract with the Los Angeles Dodgers and has been assigned to Atlanta in the Southern Association.

WHO GETS INTO COLLEGE?

1. The need for parents to promote thinking, learning and reading.

Colleges, particularly the preferred colleges, are bookish places. They emphasize reading and discussion as stimuli to learning and thinking instead of stressing note-taking and the study of text-books to accumulate facts. College entrance tests are built in part to measure reading skills. And the student with the habit of reading will do better work in college than the student who relies on studying text books and memorizing facts.

The habit of reading is most easily formed at home. It can be formed by the presence and discussion of books. This means, for example, that the fifty dollars that parents often spend on coaching for college entrance tests can better be spent over two years in the collection of fifty or sixty "highbrow" paperbacks. For this is reading that will do more than any coaching courses to improve test scores—and it will at the same time improve preparation for college studies, which coaching courses do not do.

2. The need for parents to make financial preparation for college.

College is a costly business. The preferred colleges cost about $3,000 a year, and of course this comes out of net income after taxes have been paid. For most families with children in college, it represents gross income of at least $4,000. Referring back to the average span of six years' attendance for students who enter a preferred college, the family of such a student must dedicate $24,000 of gross income for his college expenses.

Not long ago, a survey showed that half of a group of parents who expected their children to go to college did not know the costs of college and were not making any preparations to meet those costs. The lesson is obvious. Parents who are not ready to deal with college costs are failing in a vital area of support. Urging a child to study so that he can get a scholarship may pay off, but it is a poor substitute for a family plan for the financing of the child's education.

Who Gets Into College?

3. The need to choose a college in terms of the child's abilities and interests.

Much is made of the problem of choosing colleges, and great effort goes into the process of choice. But the results, if judged by the turmoil that attends the annual selections, fall far short of expectations. The difficulty seems to lie in the placing of emphasis on the college, not the student. When the application is sent in, the parent often knows more about the merits of the college to which the application is going than he does about the applicant as an applicant.

Naturally it is difficult for a parent to be objective about his own child. But enough is now known about evaluating individual abilities and achievements that any parent who really wants to may view his child as the child will be viewed by the college. Such an evaluation is neither so difficult nor so time consuming as the processes parents often go through in evaluating colleges. And since it relies on standard academic information, it involves little or no cost. Yet its value is inestimable. For if the choice of college is made in terms of the child's capabilities, the first and most important step has been taken toward placing the child in the college that seems best for him. And this in turn is the best insurance for a successful college career.

J. Paul H. Hively (left), vice-president of the Juniata Parents Association, arranged for a gift of $1000 from Stroehmann Brothers Company, Williamsport, with Harold J. Stroehmann, Jr., president of the company. The check was forwarded to the College through the Foundation of Independent Colleges, Inc. THE JUNIATA SPORTS PARADE

Dr. Greene Resigns as Tribe Coach

THE RESIGNATION of Dr. T. Arnold Greene as head coach of basketball at the College has been accepted with "keen regret" by President Ellis.

Dr. Greene, a practicing dentist in Huntingdon, requested to be relieved of the coaching assignment which he has held in the Department of Physical Education since 1949. His reasons were considered "personal."

Dr. Greene's 12 years of service to Juniata "have been very much appreciated," President Ellis stated. "He has cooperated fully with college policy and we have appreciated the fact that he has been willing to do the best he could with the material available."

The former Pitt football great and one-time professional baseball player brought Juniata's basketball teams out of a post-war lull in 1949 to produce a 15-6 record in 1953-54—the best season since 1925. He then had six straight .500 or better seasons and compiled a 12-year mark of 103 wins and 131 losses.

A keen sports strategist, Dr. Greene first became associated with Juniata in 1948 as an advisory football coach. He succeeded P. M. (Mike) Snider, now director of athletics, as basketball coach one year later. In addition, Dr. Greene served as head baseball coach for one season (1954).

Frazier Leads Cagers

PAT FRAZIER of Hollidaysburg, a 5-10 sophomore with excessive energy, carried off top scoring honors to brighten an otherwise gloomy season for the Indians.

The former Hollidaysburg High cager finished the season with 323 points in 18 contests for a 17.9 average. He tallied 122 of 289 field goals and was the leading foul shooter with .79 of 112 for a .738 mark.

Frazier's scoring in Middle Atlantic Conference games was even more impressive. He averaged 21.5 with 237 in 11 contests.

Ken Saupp, a Huntingdon freshman who started the year on the junior varsity, was runner-up to Frazier with 117 points in 13 games. However, John Long, sophomore from Merchantville, N. J., had a slightly higher average of 10.3 with 93 points in nine games.

As a team Juniata averaged only 61.7 points per game to the opponents' 79.3 in posting the worst record in its 57-year basketball history. The Indians won one and lost 17.

Alumni Ready for Battle

A FORMIDABLE TEAM is being "recruited" among the alumni to oppose the Juniata varsity in the now-traditional clash on the baseball diamond at College Field Alumni Day (June 3).

It was a 5-5 deadlock last year, but the Alumni team holds a 4-3 edge in the series which started in 1952. One game (1956) was rained out.

Acceptances have been "running high," according to Coordinator Chuck Bargerstock '47 and the probable line-up will be drawn from the following: Pitchers—Ferrill 'Lefty' Alderfer '57, Earl Detrick '52, J. Henry (Hank) Eisenhart '44; Catchers—Jim Berrier '60, Rex Donnelly '60; Infielders—Wes Lingenfelter '58, Ken Leonard '54, Jack Dickey '52 and Bernie Oriss '56; Outfielders—Wally Berkey '60, Joe Hinish '55, Earl Kaylor '46, Paul Peoples '50 and Ron Wertz '59.

The "big guns" are gone from the varsity team—fellows like the Berrier twins, Don Ross and Ed Hoffman, but Coach Ken Bunn has been working in some promising "rookies" to fill the gaps. Grey Berrier, kid brother of Bill and Jim, is catching and Randy Pletcher looks like an infield "comer." Both are freshmen.

CAMPUS VIEWPOINT

Senate 'Under Fire' in Elections

By

KAY GILLIES '62

EVIDENCES of dissatisfaction and criticism among the student body toward Juniata's student government were heard in this year's Senate election campaigns. Seeming to be foremost among the dissatisfied was the complaint that Senate was at a standstill, handicapped by a combination of student apathy and administration policies.

John Rummel took over as Senate President on Move-Up Day with a pledge to try to revitalize student government with student support. Members of his cabinet include Galen Warren, vice president; Linda Reidenbaugh, secretary, and David Ambrose, treasurer. Nine chairmen were also elected.

Major achievements of the past Senate were the development of an honor code and of a social club constitution. Both of these documents have administration and faculty approval; soon the student body will vote to accept or reject the proposed programs.

The internal structure of the Senate was also improved with the advent of new files for Senate activities.

Class of '62 Wins

ALL CLASS NIGHT this year, revolving around to the theme of comedy, produced highly amusing and original skits.

When the Class of '62 won the coveted trophy, the class, in its junior year, had achieved top honors in each of Juniata's class competitions. The string of victories began last spring when the group, as sophomores, placed first in the inter-class track meet, continued through with blue ribbon honors for their Totem Inn Christmas decorations, and, most recently won by a narrow margin, the track competition again. The Juniors also planned the first off-campus party, shortly after Move-Up Day 1960.

'The Voice' Published

JUNIATA'S NEWEST student publication, a literary magazine known as The Voice, is being received favorably by its readers. Nineteen students contributed samples of their literary talents to Editor Nancy E. Fitch '62 and Associate Editors Rosalie K. Knight '62 and James D. Lear '61. As a result, the 48-page magazine contains short stories, poetry and essays of both a light and a more serious tone. The Voice, in its second year as a campus publication, is subsidized by the Senate.

Political Concern

INTERNATIONAL and governmental affairs have stepped into the spotlight of concern on the Juniata campus. This was uncovered last fall when Danforth lecturer Dr. James Childers visited JC to present his views of how the Orient sees the United States.

Henry Steele Commager, sponsored by the Will Judy lectureship; Lisa Sergio, Danforth lecturer; and Colin Jackson, American visitor from London, have lectured at Oller Hall convocations, in class rooms, and held informal discussions where students have demonstrated their political concern this year.

WJC Expands Schedule

THIS YEAR WJC continued to improve and expand its facilities with the aid of Senate. The Indian Broadcasting Company now boasts a program schedule which includes afternoon shows as well as the regular evening broadcasts. Gum bands, paper clips and tape still hold some of the equipment intact, but the Senate's financial grant has helped to renovate the broadcasting apparatus. Staffers are broadcasting Juniata's home baseball games this season.

An eight-member delegation from the College participated in a Brethren Youth Seminar in Washington in late January as part of a six-day study of national and international governmental procedures. En route the group served as a deputation team to sing and speak at Brooklyn, N. Y., and Wilmington, Del. Left to right: R. Wayne Barnes '63, Westminster, Md.; Margaret J. Robinson '63, Villa Park, Ill.; Laurence R. Jones '63, Indianola, Pa.; Marie Ann Zeller '63, LaVerne, Calif.; the Rev. Clarence H. Rosenberger '36, director of church relations; Galen A. Heckman '61, Smithsburg, Md.; Mary E. Rambo '63, Bellmore, N. J. Mary K. Wieand '63, Lombard, Ill., is the pianist.

WJC has operated successfully a newspaper concession this year in addition to its peanut sale. This money has also been used for some of the needed repairs.

Religious Activity

RELIGIOUS ACTIVITIES on campus recently took a new twist. The Chairman of Religious Activities is no longer the president of the Juniata Christian Association. JCA is now separate from Senate with its own cabinet guiding its activities. The Senate chair will continue to promote and plan religious activities for the student body and will receive its budget from the Senate. JCA activities will be on a smaller scale and its budget will be determined from membership dues.

The Juniata campus now has a meditation chapel, located in First Brumbaugh, which is the product of the efforts of the Chairman of Religious Activities. This newly acquired room has been painted and equipped with altar, special lighting, Christian Bibles, chairs and a place to kneel.

Some Campus Changes

THE JUNIATIAN changed its appearance when Kay Haviland took the chief editor's reins in January. Replacing the former name plate is a new one which the staff believes conforms better to modern journalistic principles of lighter page makeup. Staff organization now includes a copy desk to gather news, prepare copy for print, help sketch layouts and write headlines.

The names are not the same, but the duties remain as they were established formerly. In the Senate elections, the student body passed a referendum to rename the two chairs of Men's House and Women's House, Chairman of Men's Student Government and Chairman of Women's Student Government. The student handbook has been named The Pathfinder.

Parents of 1200 Kids

JUST IMAGINE becoming the parents of 1200 youngsters!

That's just about what has happened to Larry Landes '59 and his wife, Merle, in the San Felipe Courts Housing Project at Houston, Tex., where Larry is social service director.

But, according to a feature article in the Houston Chronicle, this is not a nerve-wracking experience and the Landeses "love every moment of it."

Not only is the program new to Larry "for whom it's actually an introduction to the whole field of social work," but it is also a pioneer experiment for the Public Housing Authority. The program is sponsored by the Child Welfare Bureau of the Association of Churches of Greater Houston.

The Houston story goes on: "Thus, as veritable greenhorns in the field of social work, Larry and Merle proceeded to work out a menu of social and sports events which has not only proved highly palatable to the youngsters but a source of pride to the entire housing project."

Larry has organized a baseball team. Merle finds herself busy on Saturday mornings with trips to the zoo or TV stations with 20 or 30 "little friends." They also oversee a lending library, work with some of the Latin-American youngsters on their English, operate a Swap Shop where mothers may exchange outgrown items of

In addition to all this, Larry and his wife supervise special interest groups, such as Y-Ettes, a YWCA-sponsored group for teen-age girls. And they're working on a nursery for tiny tots, creative clubs and classes for older children, and a complete program of summer activities.

Licensed Ministers

THE SONS of two members of the College staff have received their ministerial licenses from the Church of the Brethren to follow in the footsteps of their fathers.

He is one of three authors of the best-selling source book on Brethren beliefs, Studies in Doctrine and Devotion.
